

PROJECT KARUNALAYA

[A Home for Homeless Senior Male Citizens]

The longing for compassion is a driving force in life. 'Karunalya' which directly translated resembles a 'House of Compassion' is a new initiative at MAHER. This project is proposed for senior male citizens who have no one to call their own. The purpose of such a setting is aimed at serving primarily as a place where every man has a roof over his head and is provided with the basic necessities for survival and thereafter as a place which he can come to love and call his home.

Most of the cases will provide for men who have been found roaming the streets, railway platform etc. who have either been abandoned or have no support system to call upon.

At present MAHER is looking forward to initiate a center accommodating this population/ group of people and hopes to provide a shelter that would be able to offer not just the basic necessities but also a sense of belonging for the members of this house.

The land for this home has already been acquired at Manjari Khurd, Tuluka Haveli, District Pune. The home proposes to accommodate a total of 60 people inclusive of 10 couples who will be provided 10 single rooms along with attached bathrooms. A common bedroom accommodating the rest of the 40 members will also be included.
